

Week 16 – Pandemonium in Piscataway: Rutgers

GoTT,

I give you your results for a week on campus... at Rutgers that is (a free beer for the first person who can successfully identify the person who coined the not so famous phrase in the Subject line of this e-mail). On a personal note Rutgers is definitely on a very short list of the new courses I want to see back on the docket next year as save their rather annoying prohibitionist stance on course consumption it really is a nice track. Nothing like getting scolded by a 20 something college student turned golf attendant when returning someone else's cart with a few empty beer cans aye Johnny!?!?

At any rate short and sweet is the way this one will go... Underneath the standings I have pasted Newman's account of the latest Piri Piri tuneup 4-ball match that you won't want to miss.

On the OOM docket, it seems going low is a requirement these days for hitting the podium, and this week was no exception. So you shot 68 this week no podium. How about 65, not even good enough for 2nd place, crap even 63 didn't win (sorry Skip). No, it took a net 62 which was supplied by The Sheriff. A man who played for the title in the final round last year, but has been hibernating most of 2010. 95 net 62 for him is really huge stuff. The Sheriff now has his handicap at an all time low. Good for you man! Second place went to the distraught Skipper who had to think that when he walked off the course on Saturday that his 92 net 63 was going to be good enough for his second straight victory... Not today! Third place went to the aforementioned Newman who carried his 4-ball team to victory despite the heat on Friday. Newman may be heating up at just the right time with this week's classic.

The Classic this week promises a tighter OOM than the one you see below. Play hard boys this could be the turning point of anyones season. Good luck to one and all tomorrow.

Week 16 – Pandemonium in Piscataway: Rutgers

From Newman's Memoir:

Here is the account of the practice 9 hole matchplay between Me and Mullet vrs Tony and Johnny:

After a grueling 9 holes in 90+ degree heat, the foursome decided to play a practice Piri Piri matchplay event. After no blood on holes 10-12, Newman and Mullet went 2 up after Newman Birdied a par 3. Not to be out done, Tony and Johnny came back and closed within 1 after hole 15. On hole 16, Newman brought out the shrimp and Tony and Johnny were so enamored by the feast that they forgot that they were in the midst of a match play. Mullet, who was used to these Newman tactics, shot a par, and help his team to go back up by 2.

At the 17th par 3, Mullet hit a shot that went just over the sand toward the hole. The ball could not be found as he went up to the green. "Where could it be?" Johnny, always hoping to get a free case of beer asked, "Did it go in?". Mullet played along as he pointed down the hole. What nobody knew was that Mullet saw his ball over was over by the sandtrap in the rough, but since no one else could see it, he decided to play a joke. The tactic worked as Mullet and Tony bogied for no blood and the match was over at 2 and 1. Thus maintaining the Mullet/Newman team's undefeated status in 4-ball Matchplay.

But the ultimate insult was yet to come. As Newman talked Mullet into driving the cart to the car and then proceeded to drink 2 victory beers with the last 2 beers in Mullet's car, Johnny and Tony were left out in the cold as the beer was gone when they got there.

Newman, never wanting to walk, then asked if Johnny wouldn't mind taking the cart back. Johnny, being the good natured guy that he is, did Newman this favor. When Johnny returned, he faced an inquisition of monumental proportions as he was grilled about the empty beers in the cart by some pissed off 20 something (enter Garty profanity here). Johnny, in true YGS fashion, was a rock and would not give up his teetime or who rented the cart.

SO, HERE'S TO YOU MR. "I DIDNT DRINK THE BEERS BUT BROUGHT BACK THE CART WITH THE EMPTIES AND GOT CHEWED OUT, MAN".
