

Week 6 – An under attended and Over Blown Classic

---

Gents,

Short and sweet this week. An incredibly disappointing 9 members made it out for the May classic, and the attendance had nothing to do with the 50 MPH wind gusts we all experienced. For the record I think I scalded 3 drives on Sunday that went less than 150 yards. In short conditions were tough. The guys who could keep it low were set to do very well and so it should surprise no one that 2 of the 3 lowest handicap guys were on the podium this week. What I find more surprising however is the guy we find leading the charge and taking the first big OOM lead of the young 2010 season. Somehow Trooper D has figured out his game this year. Mike shot a 99 net 72, yes net even par in a gale, and in so doing won the classic by 2 strokes, his second win in the last 4 weeks, opening up a huge 6 point gap over our Little Buddy and the field. Is this the beginning of a big run or just an early season tease... We'll see.

In second place was a tie among 2 pretty darn good rookies. First Los went out and shot an 88 net 74. Good enough for a tie for second. Along the way he also knocked off last year's runner up The Skipper in match play by a 2 up score. In the other 4 some Tim-e-way showed that he is ready to take the mantle as our lone regular with a single digit handicap. We knew we were in trouble watching him smack low piercing 3 woods through the wind early on. It was pretty disheartening actually to watch him reach 400 yard par 4's dead into the wind in 2 while some of us are hitting 3 irons from 130 yards out for our 3rds. Well Tim shot an incredible 82 net 74 to tie for second as well. In so doing he knocked off our defending match play champion 3 and 2. I had him down by 2 at the turn but he did not allow me to win a hole on the back. After a 0-1-1 start to round robin play we could see our first defending champ not make the knockout this year... Or not!

Your results and standings are below. Good luck to everyone partaking in the Pro-Am this week. We'll see you at the View next week.
