

Week 8 – Results from a Mountainous View

GoTT,

Apparently nobody cares about a good write up any more. Why do I say that? Well not a single note from anyone except for Newman on the match play results. Since I didn't make it out this week I really didn't get to observe all that much so I don't have much to report beyond the fact that the Mets are rolling this week and when that happens their number one fan on tour seems to show up. Our Little Buddy is on a tear this season.

Apparently he is trying to find a reason to actually show up this October once in a while. Johnny parlayed the YGS rules to perfection posting his 93 net 68 in his second attempt this week and in so doing racking up his 3rd victory of this short season. Like I said, I don't know how you did it, but congrats Little Buddy. You are back in 2nd place in the order of merit and are still a part of that breakaway pack at the top of the order.

In second place is Los who threw down a very nice round of his own. Los shot 83 net 69 for his second straight podium and he is quickly taking Tommy's place as the second best golfer on tour. C'mon Mullet, you can't go out like that man! Anyway I digress... Los has climbed into 7th place in the order and is poised to start a mid season run to greatness... but will he...

Third place went to Newman for the second time this season. Newman went 101 net 71 and in the process got himself back on track in match play with a victory over the The Sheriff.

Hard luck 4th went to Tony, Peetah and Paul M, but can we really feel badly for guys finishing 4th when they don't break net par... nah we can't.

Good luck to everyone on our inaugural trip to the Meadows at Middlesex. Remember guys the "my backyard is not your toilet" guy is lurking out there somewhere... please beware...
